

One month of low-dose tirzepatide: $40 vial, $399 to the client.

Referred by a spa · $100 to the spa · $25 to Dr. Arora · 20% to Ryan Kent for prescribing · what is left for Hello Gorgeous Month 1 keeps about $142 (or ~$112 if Hello Gorgeous eats $30 shipping). Month 2 keeps about $267. The spa cut is a first-order cost. Do not pay it again on refills.

Assumptions for this sheet only: client is charged $399 for one month; vial cost $40; referring spa $100 on first paid medication only; Dr. Arora override $25 on first paid medication only; Ryan 20% of the $399 (your working number for this page). Square estimated at 2.9% + $0.30 card-not-present. Not a forecast.

MONTH 1 VS MONTH 2+ (SAME PATIENT, 20% RYAN ON $399)

LINE	MONTH 1 – FIRST PAID MED, REFERRED	MONTH 2+ – REFILL
Client pays Hello Gorgeous	399.00	399.00
Vial (low-dose, 1 month)	-40.00	-40.00
Referring spa	-100.00	0.00
Dr. Arora override	-25.00	0.00
Ryan 20% × $399	-79.80	-79.80
Square (~2.9% + $0.30)	-11.87	-11.87
Left in Hello Gorgeous	142.33	267.33

If Hello Gorgeous pays $30 shipping and does not add it on top of $399, month 1 is ~$112 and month 2 is ~$237. If the client pays $30 ship and it costs $30, shipping is a wash and the table above stands.

What this one vial does pay

Pharmacy cost, spa acquisition, Arora's $25, Ryan's commission, card fees. Hello Gorgeous still clears three figures on month 1 and almost double that on every refill at $399 / $40.

What this one vial does not pay

Dr. Arora's $1,500 Medical Director fee or $500 network retainer (those sit on the month, not this line). Syringes, cold pack, label, desk time. Refunds and failed cards.

Read this once: you are thin on month 1 because $100 + $25 + 20% Ryan is $205 of split on a $399 ticket. You are fine on month 2. Do not put 20% Ryan and a $100 spa cut on every refill.

Working numbers from Danielle, August 2026. Illustrative only – not a quote, forecast, or outcome guarantee. Vial cost is internal COGS. Square fee is an estimate. Ryan's current signed plan pays 10% of collected RE GEN, not 20%; 20% is modeled here because that is the split under discussion.
